The California High School Exit Exam (CAHSEE) and Special Education-Ginger Renee Adams 2007 This thesis represents an in-depth case study on the California High School Exit Exam (CAHSEE) in relation to students in special education, including an historical summary, exam content, basic administration guidelines, exemptions and waiver processes, and modifications and accommodations utilized on the exam. It also includes a discussion about the possible implications of the exam, including issues of fairness, student motivation, higher expectations for students in special education, and increasing the value of the California high school diploma. Because results show overall lower passing rates for students with special needs, the investigator discusses the issue of officials willing to change the way tests are scored whenever they don't like the results; and massive, multi-national, for-profit testing companies who regularly opt for expediency and profit over the altruistic educational goals of teaching and learning. Although there are absurd moments--as when Farley and coworkers had to grade students based on how they described the taste of their favorite food-- the enormous importance of standardized tests in the post "No Child Left Behind" era make this no laughing matter. "This book is dynamite! The nice personal voice makes it utterly accessible and enticing, wholly apart from the terribly important ammunition it provides to those of us in the 'testing wars' at national and local levels."—Jonathan Kozol, author of Savage Inequities
